Two Burned, Five Flee Downtown Blaze

FIREMEN SAVE 3, CARRY THEM DOWN LADDERS

Man, Wife Burned as Flames Break Out In South Main Street Building.

WATER DAMAGE HEAVY

Three Fire Companies Fight Blaze, Keep It From Spreading to 3rd Story.

Two persons were burned and five others fled from their apartments in their night clothing at 7 a. m. today when fire broke out in a three-story building at South Main street and Luther Place. Firemen rescued three persons by carrying them down ladders from the third floor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Winters, in whose apartment the blaze started, were given first aid treatment by firemen and later removed to the General hospital.

Winters told Fire Chief Charles Seeburg that the flames burst forth from the bathroom of his apartment on the second floor just as he was about to open the door. The flames quickly spread through the kitchenette and a small inside stairway.

Mr. and Mrs. Winters were burned, he more seriously, when they attempted to save household furnishings. While throwing many articles from the windows, Winters suffered burns about the arms and chest and Mrs. Winters about the head and feet.

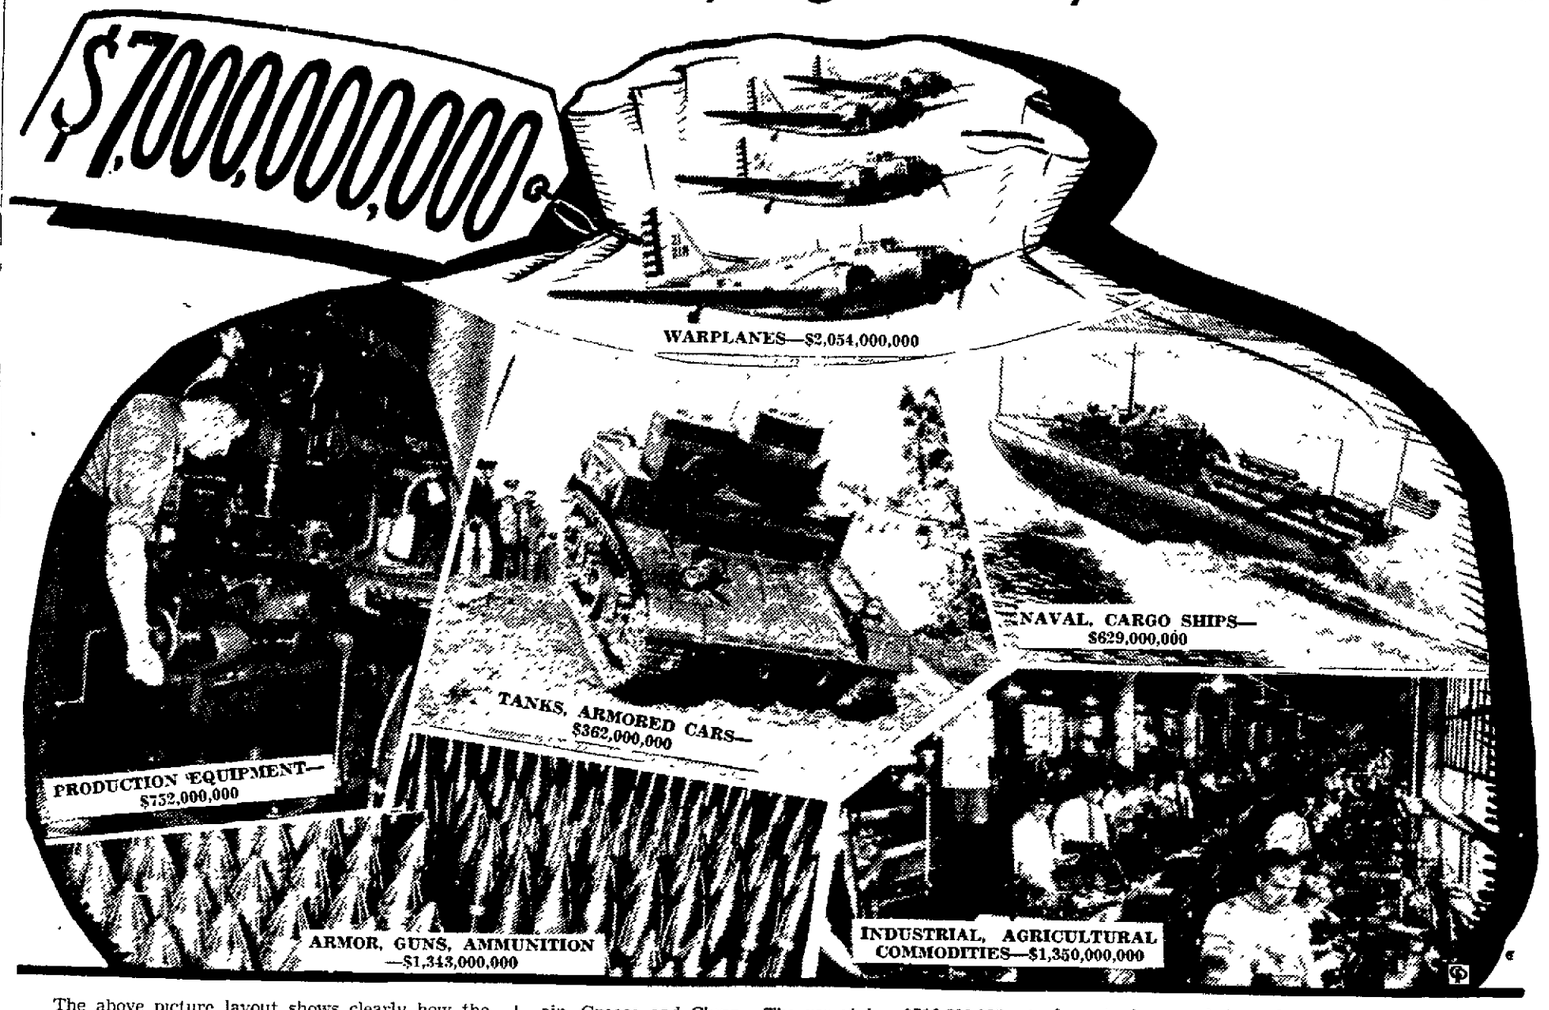
Mrs. Effie Daugherty, 58, her son, Richard, 27, and Miss Rhea Homerick, 24, were taken from their apartments on the third floor by firemen down a ladder. S. R. Davis and Mrs. Emma Ferguson were also driven from their rooms.

Most of the damage was confined to the bathroom and kitchenette of the Winters apartment but firemen were pressed to prevent flames from spreading to the third story from outside.

Considerable water damage was caused, both in the Winters' home and in the Stag Cafe located on the first floor. William Hipp, proprietor, could make no estimate of his damage.

The building is owned by Mrs. John Hartenfels of 160 Lexington avenue. She said that she had been informed of the fire but that she could make no damage estimate until the property had been inspected.

What FDR's Huge Moneybag Will Buy for Democracies



The above picture layout shows clearly how the United States plans to spend seven billions of dollars to aid the embattled democracies—Great Britain, Greece and China. The remaining $510,000,000 not accounted for in the figures shown in the pictures will go for miscellaneous defense work required to keep tanks, vessels, warplanes and munitions flowing continuously to the struggling democracies—the United States contribution to the battle being waged against the Axis powers.

Roosevelt to Explain Aid Policy Tonight

TAX DEADLINE JAMS OFFICE

Income Levy Collectors Busy At Postoffice; Stay on Job Till 9 Tonight.

Mansfield deputy collectors of the internal revenue office estimated that more than double the number of income tax returns are being filed in Mansfield than in any previous year as a deadline rush streamed today through the offices in the postoffice.

The Mansfield office will close at 9 p. m. Payments without penalty may be made by mail until midnight.

Meanwhile over the nation milions of Americans dug into their pockets today to contribute to their share of the anticipated $3,000,000,000 collections, largest in the nation's history.

Some authorities believed that the take for the government would hit close to the billion dollar mark.

Returns filed after the deadline will subject the taxpayer to a fifty per cent penaty on the total tax, plus six per cent interest until the total amount is paid.

BRITONS TOLD TO LEAVE

LONDON — (AP) — An informed source said today the British legation in Budapest had asked Britons who have no special reason to remain in Hungary to depart "because it is getting more and more difficult" to leave the country.

Expected to Deny He'll Weaken Navy

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt, informed legislators said today, will tell the American people in his radio address tonight he has no intention of weakening this country's fleet in order to help Britain and other nations under the $7,000,000,000 lend-lease program.

These sources expressed belief the chief executive would make a rather "definite statement" on the subject of releasing naval vessels and would assure the public that under no circumstances would the American navy be placed in an unbalanced state.

The prediction also was made that he would call for speed and more speed in ship production and make a new appeal for a united nation behind the defense program. Some mention might be made about strikes in defense industries, it was reported.

Mr. Roosevelt will speak at 9:30 p. m. (Mansfield time) while attending the annual banquet of the White House Correspondents' association.

Congressional sources said Mr. Roosevelt would endeavor to set at rest contentions made during the debate on the lease-lend bill that he might give away large portions of the fleet.

It was said he probably would give assurances that any units of the navy transferred to Britain would not be vital to maintenance of a balanced fleet and would be replaced with newer and better ships later on.

Meanwhile, a house appropriations subcommittee planned to

ARREST NEAR

Police Predict Solution of Heiress Murder Case.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(U.P.)—An arrest was believed near today in the murder of Leila Welsh, beautiful 24-year-old heiress, whose killer mutilated her body with a butcher knife, and traced an initial on it in blood.

Police Chief Lear B. Reed said his investigation pointed toward one man, against whom he was attempting "to cinch the evidence."

After six days of ceaseless investigation, police believed they had traced the knife. They had found a man who believed he saw the maniac, and Reed said the initial was an "invaluable clue."

ELECTRIC EYE BEATS THE CAT'S

It 'Sees' Feline In Store, Sets Off Burglar Alarm.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — A cat that wandered into the second floor of a woman's dress manufacturing concern last night found something which saw better in the dark than he did.

It was an electric eye, attached to a burglar alarm. The alarm sounded and brought seven police cars to the building. Policemen searched under desks and counters for the cause of the alarm and finally noticed the cat peering at them from a dark corner.

REACH ACCORD

Union, Humphryes Agree; NLRB Election Called Off.

Officials of Local 756 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America announced today they had reached an agreement with the Humphryes Manufacturing company which will give the union sole bargaining rights for all production employes of the firm

The agreement, according to Adam Leitenberger, union president, will make it unnecessary to hold an election scheduled for Monday to determine the question of bargaining rights. The election, in which Humphryes employes would participate, had been ordered by the National Labor Relations board at the request of the union.

Company officials confirmed Leitenberger's announcement. Leitenberger said he would meet Monday with Humphryes representatives to draw up the final contract for bargaining rights for Local 756 union.

Three Ohio State reformatory trusties who locked a guard in a cold storage chamber and escaped from the institution farm dormitory Wednesday night were still at large today.

The first fugitives from the reformatory in three months, the trio accosted Guard Fred C. Williams while he was making his rounds shortly before midnight and threatened him with butcher knives they had stolen from the dormitory kitchen.

They took his keys and locked him in the basement storage room.

EVADERS SENT UP

Two Clevelanders Who Failed To Register Get 18 Months.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Two Cleveland men today were sentence to 18 months in federal penitentiary, with no prospect of pardon, following their conviction as draft evaders.

In sentencing the men, Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin charged Joe Kogut, 24, and Pyrmere Johnson, 22, with "narrow, sordid, selfish consideration" of their own interests.

The cases were the first held here for draft evasion, after the men had failed to register.

FREE ON BOND

Couple Released After Arrest On Kidnaping Charge.

CINCINNATI —(INS)— Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Luginbuhl, of Cincinnati, were free on $250 bond each today after being arrested for the alleged kidnaping of Daisy Combs, 13, Mrs. Luginbuhl's daughter by a previous marriage.

Thomas, Generous In Encore Numbers, Delights 1,200 Here

By KEN WOODMAN

John Charles Thomas very nearly stole his own show with two of the numerous encores he sang last night at the final concert in the Mansfield Civic Music series at Senior high auditorium. And no wonder: they were among the most famous baritone arias from all operatic literature.

The audience of 1200—largest since the appearance here of Marian Anderson—broke into spontaneous applause at the opening bars of the accompaniment of "Di Provenza" from Verdi's "La Traviata" which Thomas sang as an encore to the first half of his program.

And the apolause following the number was prolonged as it was when he encored his next group with the famous "Barber of Factotum" aria from Rossini's "Barber of Seville."

Opening with five art songs in Italian and French, Thomas gave only a faint hint of the rare humor that was to highlight his concert in Lemaire's epicure song "Chanson a Manger."

This strain of humor increased as the audience caught the singer's mood in David Guion's arrangement of "All Day on the Prairie," a Texas cowboy song.

But Thomas evoked spontaneous peals of laughter with his quizzical singing of the Virginia folk song "The Deaf Woman's Courtship."

In magnificent contrast was his touching rendition of the Negro

Youthful Bandits Caught After 12 Successful Robberies.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.) — Two 18-year-old youths admitted to police today to looting 12 Cleveland homes after being captured during their 13th attempt.

"Guess we just lost count," they said. "We were going to stop at 12. It was the jinx that got us."

IN NEW JAIL

WEST UNION—(INS)—Robert Wilson, 26, who will be tried on a first degree murder charge April 14 in connection with the 1932 death of Warren Spencer, Manchester theater operator, today was removed from the Adams county jail to the Brown county jail at Georgetown for safe keeping.

SLIGHT ERROR

Disney Gets Prehistoric Monsters A Little Bit Mixed Up.

PITTSBURGH —(U.P.)— Curator J. Leroy Kay of Carnegie museum says he found one "slight error" in Walt Disney's Fantasia. The picture has a giant tyrannosaurus rex of the Cretaceous period fighting a death battle with a stegosaurus of the Jurassic period.

The periods are some 90,000,000 years apart, reported the paleontologist—but most people won't know the difference.

KILLED AS CARS COLLIDE

NEWARK —(AP)— Jesse Richards, 33, of Newark, was killed in an auto collision a half-mile south of here on route 79 early today.

Nazis and RAF Again Unleash Heavy Attacks

Both Sides Claim Damaging Blows Are Struck; Germans Mass Planes to Meet British Challenge, With Balkan Crisis Heightening.

(By Associated Press)

The reported landing of nearly 100,000 mechanized British troops in southern Greece and the tuning up of hundreds of German warplanes at Bulgarian airports indicated a new Balkan war front was in the making today.

Neutral diplomats arriving at Belgrade from Athens told of the disembarkation of the Britons at five ports—and said they expected both British and Greeks to deny it officially for strategic reasons within 12 hours.

The ports were not named, but Salonika has been mentioned most frequently in speculation as to how a German thrust against eastern Greece might be most effectively met. Flame-throwing machines, tanks and anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns were mentioned among items of British equipment.

German circles asserted the Balkan crisis was "reaching a critical stage" and swastika-marked fighting, bombing and transport planes were wheeled from newly-occupied hangars.

Air raiders exchanged heavy blows across the English channel and the North sea in a continuation of the stepped-up campaigns which both Britain and Germany launched after enactment of the British aid bill in Washington Tuesday

British warplanes blasted at such industrial centers as Gelsenkirchen, Dusseldorf and Rotterdam. The German high command declared damage to German industries "was negligible." It reported some civilians were killed or injured. The British acknowledged loss of two of the raiding planes.

Striking from the channel coast to northwest Scotland, German crews raided Glasgow, Sheffield, London, Leeds, Plymouth and Southampton, leaving a trail of property damage and casualties. The high command announced the sinking of two merchant vessels totalling 11,000 tons off Britain's east coast.

The British said four Nazi bombers were shot down in the raiding, which was described officially as "on a considerable scale and spread over most parts of the country." Informed quarters in Berlin said one British raider was downed in western Germany.

It was the second successive

BERLIN HANDED TURKISH NOTE

Reported to Be In President's Hand-Writing; Turkey Says Policy's Unchanged.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—DBN, official German news agency, said today a high Turkish foreign office official arrived at Sofia, Bulgaria, yesterday en route to Germany with a hand-written message from Turkey's president to Adolf Hitler.

* * *

A message from Hitler was delivered to Turkish President Ismet Inonu at Ankara by a 5-man commission March 4. Qualified sources said that the note declared the Nazis wished to look after Turkey's "interests and well-being."

Official quarters at Ankara, however, said the message would have little effect on the pro-British policy of the country.

SCORES BRICKER

Bittinger Says He Has Lost Legislative Control.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—J. Freer Bittinger, Democratic state chairman, declared in a statement today that Gov. John W. Bricker "seems to have lost the slight control he once had over the legislature."

"On several occasions during the week Republican caucuses were held," Bittinger said. "Once, under the direction of the governor, the senate majority hastily assembled to count noses and determine whether or not something could be done to speed up the legislative program. Nothing came of it, however."

The Democratic leader also asserted that "with the passing of each day the people of Ohio seem to become more united in the belief that Ohio's taxes can and should be reduced now."

GETS FLYING SCHOLARSHIP

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Verne Henry Malloy 233 Irving avenue, Dayton, has been awarded a flying cadet scholarship in the army air corps and been assigned to the Park's Air college East St. Louis Ill., army headquarters at Fort Hayes said today

Husband Stunned At Details of Murder of Wife

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(U.P.)—James W. Rawlins, 65, retired business man who brought his pretty, 35-year-old wife here for the winter, was stunned today on learning the details of her murder during an all-night drinking spree with two taxicab drivers.

"We never entertained and had few friends here," he said. "We were in the habit of sleeping late, then going downtown for dinner, and to the movies or dog races. I have often read about these horrible things happened to people, but never pictured it happening to us."

Mrs. Rawlins left home Tuesday night. When she did not return Wednesday, her husband notified police. Yesterday police informed him that her body had been found in a shallow grave on the side of a road near Gainesville, 170 miles from here.

Earl J. Allen and Frank B. Hogan, taxicab drivers directed police to the body when they were stopped at Brooksville, 60 miles from here, by a policeman who noticed blood stains in their car. Both were charged with murder. They accused each other of the killing.

Mansfield Nature Club Joins Fight to Bar Quail Shooting

Members of the Mansfield Nature club and other bird lovers in the city had joined the fight today to keep the Bob White quail on the Ohio songbird list.

Petitions were being circulated by club members and their friends, seeking defeat of a bill now pending in the Ohio legislature which would permit quail hunting in 1942 in 33 southern Ohio counties.

The petitions are addressed to Jack Easton, chairman of the conservation committe of the Ohio house of representatives.

Introduced by the League of Ohio Sportsmen, the measure has already stirred a controversy between farmers and sportsmen throughout the state. In letters to state representatives and senators, a number of farmers have threatened to bar all hunting on their properties if the bill passes.

The quail, they point out has been on the songbird list for 28 years and has proved one of the most valuable destroyers of insects and weed seeds. Farmers also like its cheery call in the morning, they are telling the legislators.

Backers of the bill emphasize that an open season on quail in the southern half of the state where the birds are more common would keep many of the hunters from that section from coming to northern counties during the pheasant season. Pheasants have never propagated well in southern Ohio.

WATER'S ISSUE

Supreme Court Gets Question of Free Supply to Hospitals.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The question of furnishing free water to a number of hospitals and other charitable institutions in Cleveland was raised again before the state supreme court today with the filing of additional pleadings by John A. Hickey, director of public utilities in Cleveland.

The answer to a mandamus suit filed by the charitable institutions contended that the Cleveland city council was without authority to authorize the giving of free water to the institutions.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Walter Pidgeon is riding the crest.

"Flight Command," now "Blossoms in the Dust" and "Nick Carter"—decidedly Nick Carter. Fan mail rising. Producers and directors saying, when they get a script, "Now, if we can get Pidgeon." That's success.

Pidgeon is riding the crest, but not for the first time. His broad-shouldered, commanding six feet three and 195 pounds are familiar with the hollows, too.

ROBBIN COONS

He strikes you right off as a fellow who can keep his head up and level in any waters, high or low. Debonairs, b. never flashy, and always down to earth. The movies are a "business" to Walter Pidgeon, and right now "business" is good.

There have been times when business wasn't so hot. Like the time the musicals repeated themselves into oblivion, and Pidgeon as a singing star was considered dead-pigeon.

He had made some silent pictures and one day in a talkie called "Declasse" with Billie Dove, the director had him sing for one scene at the piano. That made him a singing star and he couldn't get away from it. "Bride of the Regiment," "Mlle. Modiste," "Viennese Nights" were some of the color musicals, expensive ones, in which he starred. Then suddenly musicals were "out."

* * *

"I saw a theater lobby," he recalls, "with a placard announcing hopefully that Walter Pidgeon in this picture sings only once."

So he wasn't a star any more, but he had a contract and he played small roles, even minute bits, to work it out. "I was getting $1,750 a week," he says. "For that I'd have washed dishes, scrubbed floors, worn a uniform and guided visitors about the lot. I haven't any art to worry about; I'm in business."

When the contract was finished, Pidgeon went back to New York and the stage where he had started. Two years later he came back and made the movie, "Fatal Lady"—distinguished, he says by taking next to the lowest gross among the year's films. There were other minor films, and then the big break. Clark Gable, whom he did not know, picked him out of a players' directory for the other male lead opposite Jean Harlow in "Saratoga." When Miss Harlow died during production, the break seemed to have turned sour. But when completed with a substitute, and finally released, "Saratoga" clicked big and Pidgeon with it. Ever since then he has been at Metro.

"Nick Carter" has long been one of Louis B. Mayer's pets. When he bought the screen rights he put Pidgeon in the films. "Nick Carter, Master Detective," "Phantom Raiders," "Sky Murder," Pidgeon does two a year, between larger assignments.

59 Selectees Say Farewells, Leave For Army Training

Amid farewells of families and sweethearts, 59 Mansfield and Richland county youths left today to join Uncle Sam's new army if they get past their final physical examination at the Ft. Hayes induction station in Columbus.

The boys left from the Union bus depot at 8 a. m. and were scheduled to reach Columbus about two hours later. From Ft. Hayes they may be sent to camps in every section of the country, since the Camp Shelby quota has been filled.

The county selective service boards meanwhile received a notice today to send 30 more men to Ft. Hayes April 3 in the 10th call which will take approximately 2,700 men from Ohio.

Next week will show a sharp decline in the number of men to leave from Richland county with less than a half dozen, most of them replacements, scheduled to go.

Group physical examinations yesterday at the Mansfield Armory produced 29 more men who are eligible for service, board clerks said. The 29 were chosen from a group of 41 men.

Board 2 had the best average of men who received doctors' and dentists' approval with 12 of 15 examined passed by the board of examiners.

DEATH VALLEY SCOTTY CALLED FRAUD BY JUDGE HEARING CASE

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Death Valley Scotty is a fraud and a cheat, a backwoods slicker who took advantage of a city man's innocence and sold him the desert, Federal Judge Benjamin Harrison charged today.

Judge Harrison took the suit of Julian Gerard, a New York financier, under advisement late yesterday. Gerard said he grub-staked Scotty—65-year-old Walter Scott—$10,000 in 1902 and was entitled to 22½ per cent of his "wealth." He had believed in the legend that Scotty dug unlimited amounts of gold from a secret mine.

There was no mine, Scotty said; Albert M. Johnson, wealthy retired Chicago business man had given him money to fritter away in large amounts since 1905 and had built his desert "castle." Johnson said it was so, he had furnished Scotty $500,000 in the last 30 years, and felt he had been well repaid in "laughs."

When Scotty finished telling about two fortunes he had buried in the Funeral mountains, only to have cloudbursts wash them away, Judge Harrison cracked down with his gavel, closed the hearing, and gave Scotty a dressing down.

He said Scotty had "defrauded" Gerard with a series of "come on" letters, in which he had painted glowing pictures of the wealth to be found in Death Valley.

"Scotty could have been prosecuted for misuse of the mails at that time," he said. "But it is too late to do that now. He is a confessed cheat. He represented to Gerard that he had something of value when he didn't have a thing.

"If I had it in my power," he continued, "I would rule to reimburse Gerard, but I can't make such a judgment on this evidence. If Mr. Gerard has any additional evidence, he may bring it into court while the case is under advisement.

"I can place no reliance in anything which Scott has testified."

WAITS IN JAIL

CCC Youth's Age Claim Causes Delay In Theft Hearing.

A colored youth from the Mansfield CCC camp waited in the county jail today while authorities tried to find out how old he is so they can determine what court to take him to for a hearing on a larceny charge.

Brought to the jail by camp officials, the youth gave his age as 17. Taken before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston for questioning, he repeated that he would not be 18 until next month. On that basis he was turned over to juvenile court.

During the juvenile court hearing, however, camp officials said records showed the youth will be 19 in April. He was ordered back to jail while authorities look for his birth record at St. Clairsville, his home.

The youth is accused of taking a new suit of clothing belonging to another camp enrolee and selling it in Mansfield.

Up and Down THE STREET

In emergency cases, a pulmotor is an important item. Mansfield firemen yesterday inspected their equipment just to be prepared in case of a sudden call. The inspection is done regularly, not only to keep the pulmotor itself in perfect condition but also to keep firemen familiar with its operation.

Out at the Mansfield Structural and Erecting company on Park avenue east they're wondering how a 30-ton steam shovel could have disappeared from a lot near the building without anyone seeing it go. The big shovel, owned by Roger Au, Mansfield contractor, has been gone for three weeks and no one seems to know what happened to it. The plant watchman said he has been on the job every night and he saw no one driving it away. So far, officers have not been called to investigate.

Enclosed with an income tax return in this morning's mail was a note and a check for $5. "Please accept my check. While the return does not call for it I would like to do my additional bit," the note said. Deputy collectors said the check would be forwarded to Washington.

Sparrows, envious of the wren's house set up by E. C. Flory, mayor of South Boulevards, in a tree at the back of his house, have spent the winter trying to force entrance through the small opening designed for the wrens. The sparrows succeeded in pecking the opening with their bills until it was large enough for their entrance. What the sparrows don't know is that Flory is planning to remodel the opening of the wren-house with a metal front so that the wrens will finally inhabit the house after all.

OFFICIALS SHY AT SUGGESTION OF LAW CHANGE

Taylor Believes Enforcement's Local Problem But Won't Recommend New Set-Up.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Reports gambling machine interests have raised $25,000 to $100,000 to obtain repeal of the state liquor board's anti-gambling regulation are having the opposite effect.

The reports hardly can be confirmed, naturally, but they have contributed to retention of regulation 32-A which reads:

"No person authorized to sell beer, intoxicating liquors or alcohol in Ohio shall have, harbor, keep, exhibit, possess or employ or allow to be kept, exhibited or used in, upon or about the premises of the permit holder any device, machine or apparatus which may or can be used for gaming or wagering."

The regulation was adopted in 1934 and hundreds of liquor and beer permits have been suspended or revoked because state agents found slot machines and pin-ball machines in drinking parlors.

The reports of a "slush fund" to finance repeal, informed sources said today, have caused officials in Gov. John W. Bricker's administration to fear that, if the regulation were abolished, rumors might spread that someone in the official family had been "bought off" by gambling interests.

Furthermore, the reports have caused the liquor board to bear down hard on the slots and pinballs.

Despite his vigorous enforcement, Director Jacob B. Taylor has little sympathy for the anti-gambling regulation.

"Gambling is a local problem and should be treated as such," he said. "I don't think that enforcement of the anti-gambling statutes is properly the work of the liquor department."

Taylor said local peace officers were supposed to help enforce the liquor laws but they generally felt this was the job of the agents.

Then, what about repeal of 32-A?

"I would not tell you that I would recommend such action," the director asserted.

"However, if the liquor board should repeal the regulation, its action would be due to a clear conviction that the rule should be off the books and would not be the result of any pressure of any sort."

A northeastern British city was attacked heavily but the number of casualties there was described officially as "not large." London had a shower of fire-bombs but most of them were extinguished as fast as they fell.

From the Albanian fighting front the Greeks reported Premier Mussolini's personal effort to spur Italian troops to victory had failed and that he must go back to Italy "covered with shame."

Earlier Greek dispatches said Mussolini, arriving in Albania more than a week ago, had ordered his generals to "do something" by today, but Greek lines remained unbroken after six days of violent attacking apparently aimed at breaking the long stalemate in the Tepeleni sector.

In Tokyo, the newspaper Asahi predicted momentous governmental and political changes in Japan on April 3, and reliable quarters said the possibilities included a single party form of government and government control of all industries.

Thomas, Generous In Encore Numbers, Delights 1,200 Here

In this, as in all of his folk songs, it was Thomas' perfect diction as well as his complete mastery of voice technique which brought the meaning of the songs home to his enthusiastic audience.

Particularly pleasing in Thomas' last programmed group of six numbers was "E'en As a Lovely Flower," the Frank Bridge arrangement of the poem which has been set to music more often than any other in literature—Heine's "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume."

Generous with encores throughout, Thomas sang a group of three additional numbers at the close of the program. In it he included the popular "In the Gloaming" and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Titwillow" which he suffixed with a whistling coda.

As a final gesture of appreciation to the audience he sang a brief salute to his listeners, "My Songs Are Thine."

Accompaniments were played by Carroll Hollister who was heard in a group of three piano solos including the familiar Debussy "Reflections on the Water" and De Falla "Ritual Fire Dance" and encored with "Londonderry Air."

Thomas and Hollister arrived in Mansfield shortly after 5 p. m. Friday and left early this morning.

At the request of Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud members of the audience who wanted to renew their Civic Music memberships turned in cards to ushers during the intermission.

Early today, Mrs. Paul Cropper, chairman of the membership campaign for 1940-41 reported that while these requests had not yet been counted the volume of cards received was "very gratifying."

Previous concerts in the season, one of the most successful yet sponsored by the association, included Argenitinita and her Spanish dance ensemble; Erica Morini, violinist; and Vronsky and Babin, duo-pianists.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember that most accidents result from excessive speed.

Now is the time to postcard Mansfielders still sojourning in Florida: "Wonderful Spring day—you should be here."

Now that your income tax report has been made, don't forget to make your personal tax return and get your new auto plates before April 1—and your real estate taxes are to be paid by March 20—so, if there's anything left you can put it aside for later taxes.

Mansfield In Traffic Safety Contest

WHILE Mansfield, within corporation limits, is completing the first two and a half months of 1941 without a traffic fatality, the record for Richland county is not so good.

This county's traffic toll to date shows nine deaths, as compared with two up to this date last year.

Considering non-fatal traffic accidents, however, Mansfield has not been doing so well, and any creditable showing in the National Traffic Safety contest, in which this city is to be entered, will require greater emphasis on safe driving than has yet been experienced.

National attention has been attracted, for instance, to Mansfield's "Safetytown" school program, originated and directed by Frend C. Boals, traffic officer and junior patrol supervisor, but this instruction of children has not carried through to anything like uniformly careful driving by adults.

Attention has been called, within the past few days, to a glaring example of faulty driving common to many Mansfield motorists—that of making a right or left turn at a busy intersection without regard to the right of pedestrians to cross "with the light."

Only ignorance or impudence could account for the frequency with which some drivers, usually sub-normal in appearance, honk their horn and swing around corners, instead of waiting for pedestrians to clear the crossing, as is required by law.

"Jumping the light" is another of the common practices in Mansfield which unnecessarily endangers pedestrians, as IT SHOULD BE KNOWN by all motorists that a start is NOT to be made during the amber interval between red and green, and that pedestrians who have stepped from the curb while the light is still red are entitled to cross to the opposite curb without being cut off by motorists who disregard the intent of the amber light.

It now appears that the state legislature is moving toward enactment of what should be a more effective drivers' license law, with 15 years established as the minimum age at which a child can be licensed to drive, and other provisions intended to establish the competency of applicants and to weed out habitually careless, reckless and drunken drivers. Something of this kind, plus stricter enforcement of traffic regulations and continuance of education in the fundamentals of safe driving, is an essential first step toward reducing the frightful highway traffic toll in deaths, injuries and property damage.

Final Day for Income Tax Reports

THIS AFTERNOON, and until 9 o'clock tonight, internal revenue officials, in their headquarters on the second floor of the postoffice building, will be kept busy helping the final detachment of income taxpayers make out their reports.

The past several weeks have witnessed unusual activity at internal revenue offices over the country as it is estimated 2,000,000 more persons are making income tax returns this year than last.

This is attributed largely to lowered exemptions, which are now $2,000 for married men and $800 for single persons.

There is also a special defense tax this year—a straight 10 per cent of the ordinary total. This addition is a clearly stated item, possibly intended to explain the increase and also to cause realization of each taxpayer's participation in the defense program.

To those who are just being initiated into the ranks of income taxpayers, including some who had not laid aside any money to make this payment, it may be said that, from all indications, next year's income tax will be higher—with possible further reduction of exemptions—so it might be a good idea to give the item of "income tax" a place in the budget.

How Democracy Is Weakened

GOVERNMENT, under strict democracy, doesn't compete with its citizens in business and doesn't receive an income, except through taxation. But democracy is flexible and its existence depends upon the will of the people. If the people wish to weaken democracy by permitting government to banish freedom of enterprise, they are entitled to do so.

The fact that democracy is so flexible enables any person in the land to advocate policies which, when adopted, curb the rights of citizens, thus causing the democratic way to become more and more remote. Strange as it may seem, the very people whose liberties and opportunities are thus destroyed, often support such policies.

Because no man can definitely say just how far democracy can be submerged by government before it is in the clutches of socialism, the people accept restrictive measures, figuring that it is safe to do so as long as democracy remains in form, even though in reality it doesn't exist as originally intended.

When a people forget how democracy was born, and ignore the principles that keep it alive, it is hard to see what will stop the growth of a bureaucratic system which will destroy it. Democracy is non-existent when socialism gets the upper hand.

The Good Ship 'American Press'

A NEW SHIP of the United States Lines, just launched in San Francisco, has been given a noble name. It is the American Press. Sister ships are American Leader, American Manufacturer, American Builder. A fifth is not yet named.

The American Press is a motor ship, electrically welded throughout, capable of a speed of 14 knots an hour when fully loaded and with a cruising range of more than 20,000 nautical miles. It will carry 59 officers and crew and has accommodations for eight passengers. This group of vessels, known as C-1 cargo ships, will ply between the United States and the Orient.

Freedom of the press and freedom of the seas are two fundamental American beliefs. Giving the name Press to a new ship in these days of abridged freedoms in large areas of the world seems particularly significant.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It was nice to see Suzanne Silvercruys again before she departed for a lecture tour that will carry her through Michigan, Wisconsin, Texas, California, Washington, Utah, Kansas, and most of the other states. The baroness came into Rockefeller Plaza for a ceremony that included the presentation of ambulances to the Belgian army in England, and she accepted them in the name of the Belgian Ambassador to England.

Miss Silvercruys, between packing, had managed to finish a little statuette of Winston Churchill in the popularized "thumbs up" attitude. This is to be duplicated and sold nationally at some nominal figure, probably $1.50, for the benefit of British relief. Between tours and sittings in her studios of Central Park, which make strenuous demands on her time, one wonders how she finds time for so much work that is devoted exclusively to the benefit of others. The statuette and the ambulance ceremony, for instance. It suggests that the truism that it is always those who are busiest who find time to lend assistance to others.

THE lion of tin pan alley this week has been Alberto Dominguez, a husky-voiced Mexican youth who is the composer of "Frenesi" and "Perfidia," two haunting south-of-the-border melodies that have made history. He has been banqueted, and interviewed by every newspaper in New York.

In Madison avenue I encountered a little scene that had its domestic flavor but was peopled by national figures. Some ladies were dining at a table in Schrafft's, talking woman's talk I suppose, when a curiously familiar figure came in, surrendered his overcoat and hat to the check girl, and sauntered over to the table. The ladies looked up and greeted him with glad cries. It was Wendell Wilkie, home after a fast trip to Indiana.

PAUL WHITEMAN, in a benevolent attitude, has written a sort of musician's "guide to glory" for the benefit of aspiring young band leaders and it is published under the title of "How To Be a Band Leader." In it the King of Jazz points out the disappointments and tribulations that are necessarily a part of most—if not all—those who essay the task of forming bands and striving for paying recognition.

"The road to success," claims Paul, "is paved with jobs, but the hardest job of all is to find work. . . . Music is fun. But the finest music, the closest friendships . . . aren't enough to hold a band together. Morale can't buy bread and support." He supplements this by saying that the members of a band look to their leader for steady employment, and then points the pitfalls and the paths a bandleader must follow. Interesting talk for people who like popular music.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"No Day Without a Line."

Prolific author of novels, plays, criticisms and other literary products, Emile Zola had much to do with perpetuating this, one of the oldest maxims, besides giving it a meaning different from that with which it was at first invested.

For his working hours, Emile Zola did not depend upon inspiration.

"Never a day without a line," was his dictum; and it resulted in such a prodigious amount of work as would have been impossible, but for some such motivating motto.

Originally, however, the words read, "No day without a line," or more popularly "A line a day."

As such they were the guiding slogan, not of a writer, but of a Greek artist, Apelles, one of the most industrious painters of antiquity—in connection with whom the line became proverbial.

"THE WHITE CLIFFS"

Britain's 'War Aims' Quite Clear

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Nothing is so annoying to President Roosevelt and his lieutenants in the field of war activities as the frequently repeated demand of many so-called intellectuals and commentators that the British government state its war aims.

"It reminds me," one very close and trusted advisor of the president stated, "of two men grappling in a death struggle. Each has almost reached his opponent's jugular vein. A casual passerby shouts for one of the men to stop and state what he is fighting about. As though he could stop and face the fact that in that pause his enemy would almost certainly kill him."

There is no secret about this view of such demands in the administration. Authorized spokesman in high position are saying it to small groups in off-the-record talks every few days. They are doing their best to make the country understand, without coming right out and saying so, that nothing in the world would serve the purposes of Hitler much more successfully than to have a statement of British war aims right now.

It takes only a few moments' consideration of this problem to see why. Years back President Coolidge was fond of saying to inquirers about a certain policy: "I will tell you what I have decided to do, but not the mental processes by which I reached that decision. You may agree with the decision, but you might not agree with the mental processes."

* * *

TAKE a look back at the last war. Obviously a large majority of the people of the United States were in favor of going into it.

A strong minority, consisting of most of the German-Americans and pacifists, were opposed.

But suppose that the eventual terms of the Versailles Treaty had been announced at that time! Then remember how many national groups in this country were bitter against Wilson in 1920 because of those terms!

Let's look at a few present possibilities. Suppose it should be officially stated that there was no intention of restoring Czechoslavakia or Poland. What's to be done about the Baltic states that have been gobbled by Russia? Or about Finland? What's to be done about the badly reshuffled Balkan boundaries? About Italy? About Italian pre-war possessions, outside of Ethiopia, in Africa?

Obviously a flat statement about any one of these questions would alienate either some element of present support in the war against the Nazis, or some element which is being counted on to make trouble for the Nazis as soon as it has been demonstrated that they are not going to win the war.

* * *

THE EASIEST case to state, possibly, is that of the Italians. A flat statement that Italy was to be stripped of all its overseas possessions, that Turkey was to get the Dodecanese Island, that Britain would keep certain islands which, as demonstrated in this war, constituted too grave a threat at the Gibraltar-Suez lifeline, might just be enough to turn the Italians from sullen and unwilling tails to the Nazi kite to eager co-operation with Hitler.

On the other hand, what would be gained by such a statement of war aims? Whom would it please, save the Nazis and a handful of critics, most of whom have been opposed to U. S. aid for Britain anyhow.

Certainly, Winston Churchill has no thought of making such a blunder, and President Roosevelt is strongly against a statement of Britain's war aims.

Listen World!

Go 'All Out'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DARK DAYS, these, for all of us. All the old plans and programs smashed. The future a blackout . . . the present a stampede. Where do we go from here? None of us knows. Life suddenly has lost both aim and meaning; yet, at the same time, it has become immeasurably more precious. No longer can we look far ahead. We are sure of only this day, this hour—and there is a desperate hunger in us to make the most of them.

Then do it! Live this day as you once dreamed of living a lifetime, "sometime when things got better." Live it gallantly, abundantly, with a fine, free gesture. Throw away your old cautions! Stop protecting yourself! Stop hoarding yourself!

LET YOUR HEART GO "ALL OUT"!

You were told, as a youngster, that "it wasn't nice to show your feelings." You were taught to be reserved . . . careful in your contacts . . . lest you bring disappointment or humiliation on yourself.

That code might have done for another day, but forget it now. You're facing too tragic a need to observe such reservations. All around you are millions as depressed and confused as you are. Millions of lives whose fuses have all blown out. And daily the prophets of gloom increase.

Never have cheer and faith and warming confidence been so needed in this land as they are today. Needed more terribly, even, than food or ammunition. Optimism—that's the first and most vital commodity in our national defence.

THEN CUT LOOSE WITH THAT SMILE AND GIVE 'EM THE WORKS! DROP THE PESSIMISM . . . FORGET THE OMENS OF DOOM . . . STOP WORRYING AND ANALYZING FOR A WHILE.

But there IS something you can do in this defense program. You can't give a submarine, but you can give yourself. You can go "all out" with every ounce of oomph you possess. Then why not start right now?

Go "all out" with your confidence in your country and your fellow citizens—and yourself! Go "all out" with your faith that God will not let us down—if we, ourselves, have the courage to fight by his side and take our share of the beating.

Go "all out" with your tolerance to the countless bewildered ones of foreign birth who need it so sorely today.

Go "all out" with your enthusiasm over the beauty and nobility of the Democratic ideal . . . and the essential strength of the American character.

Go "all out" with every healthy, normal activity you can contrive. Plant that garden. Paint that garage. Help those boy scouts. Take those lonely refugees in for a warming evening of food and laughter. Back up every friendly impulse with all you've got.

Will you be disappointed some times? Discouraged sometimes? Double-crossed . . . taken advantage of? Of course you will. These things are bound to happen to every brave soul who tries to rise above the level of our common selfishness and fear. But can't you take it? And won't it be worth it? Or do you propose to snivel these days away—blot them off the calendar? Don't! These are the greatest days you may ever know. Meet them courageously, rise to their height!

LIVE JOYOUSLY, GENEROUSLY, FEARLESSLY!

GO "ALL OUT" FOR LIFE!

Monticello Clear of Debt.

Through the patient application of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation beautiful and historic Monticello, the enchanting country seat of the third president, has been cleared of debt after nearly 20 years of effort.

Although the precise financial difficulties into which Monticello fell after Jefferson's death are somewhat beclouded, still a pall of debt has hung over the place for more than a century. Jefferson's heirs relinquished the cherished spot and had it not been for the consideration shown it by later owners this historic shrine might have passed completely from existence. Happily its preservation for ages to come was assured when a small group of Americans established in 1923 the Jefferson Memorial Foundation and each contributed $1000 to start the movement which has finally resulted in clearing Monticello.—Columbus Dispatch.

Nation Swings to Swift Action After Congress Passes Aid Bill

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A HUSKY, top-coated figure dashed down the capitol steps Tuesday afternoon, jumped into a waiting taxi, sped to the White House with a thin brief case.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was waiting at his desk. At 3.51 p. m. he signed bill 1776, the "lease-lend" bill, which Chairman Michael Kirwan (D-Ohio) of the House Committee on Enrolled Bills had delivered to him.

At 3:55 the president ordered a list of war supplies on its way to England and Greece. The act authorizes him to transfer $1,300,000,000 worth of existing materials immediately. Then, at his regular press conference at 4, he told reporters he was going to ask congress for $7,000,000,000—the nation's biggest peace-time appropriation in history—to finance further lease-lend aid to fighting democracies.

The rushing of the bill to the president's desk wound up four days' of breathless congressional action.

With startling suddenness administration forces battered down amendment after amendment. Forlornly, opponents watched the bill roar to 60-31 passage.

The house quickly re-okayed the bill 217-71. House action simmered down to approving senate amendments, all approved by the administration and all but one of them minor.

The exception was an amendment by Senator Byrd (D-Va.) preventing future army and navy appropriations for being used to buy equipment for Britain unless congress approves.

Less than 24 hours after he signed the bill the president sent his request for $7,000,000,000 (which includes the $1,300,000,000 worth of material now existing or on order) to congress. Budget Director Smith said this should be enough for the life of the act—until June 30, 1943.

The largest item was $2,054,000,000 for "aircraft and aeronautical material." Other items included $1,343,000,000 for guns and ammunition, $1,350,000,000 "for "agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles," $362,000,000 for tanks, trucks and other vehicles.

At Home

Political Loopholes.

A free translation of the Hatch act enabled the Republicans to spend almost $15,000,000 and the Democrats around $6,000,000, the Senate Investigating committee reported.

The committee disclosed that the Hatch Act limiting contributions and expenditures of National committees to $3,000,000 a year resulted in a "mushroom" growth of "independent committees" each claiming the right to raise and spend $3,000,000.

It said that more than 100 of the independent groups operated during the last campaign with most of them supporting the Republican presidential candidate.

In addition, the committee criticized the $5,000 limit on individual contributions because it exempted contributions to state or local groups. It cited that "family contributions" consisted of $186,780 by the Duponts, $108,525 by the Pew family and $59,000 by the Rockefellers, all to Republicans or affiliated groups.

Report on Big Business.

For two years and nine months the monopoly committee, headed by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) and composed of congressmen and officials of federal agencies, has been looking into the nation's economic ills. On Monday O'Mahoney offered some conclusions.

He said the basic trouble was that "business organization has grown to such proportions that neither the people, as individuals, nor through their local governments, are able to cope with it. Even the governments of the states themselves are in truth and in fact submerged by modern business organization."

He feared that further centralization of economic power would lead to further centralization of political power and proposed that it be avoided by returning to truly free, private enterprise.

Pacific Speck.

Senators okayed a billion-and-a-half dollar supplemental defense appropriation which contained $169,415,000 for installing naval works at Guam, Samoa, at some of the bases acquired from Britain and at bases on continental United States. Congressmen have fussed for years over the advisability of fortifying Guam, a speck way out in the Pacific. It is 6,000 miles from California, 1,200 miles from Japan.

This Is Ohio

A PERSONAL matter with Gen. George Washington was the effort to obtain for the officers and men of the old Virginia regiment which he commanded in the French and Indian war, the bounty land allotted to them for their services.

Elected their agent, Washington pushed the matter to a conclusion, advanced his own funds, some of which he did not get back, and made a hazardous canoe trip with a small party in 1770, down the Ohio river to locate the land. On this trip Washington killed several buffalo. These animals, it seemed to him might in the future supply meat for America, so he undertook an experiment with them. At his death, nearly 30 years later, a buffalo cow still remained among his stock animals at Mt. Vernon.

Oriental Complaints.

Internal creaks were heard from both contestants of the Far Eastern war.

Japan—Premier Prince Konoye has sometimes been regarded as a hypochondriac. His frequent illnesses have coincided (to put it in the words of Asahi, one of Japan's leading journals) with "the most critical times" in affairs of state.

Konoye has professed illness for the past month. Asahi complained on Monday that Japan has pressing domestic problems to attend to that "the nation feels somewhat forlorn and helpless . . . because it cannot rely upon his courage or ability to translate his resolution into action." It urged Konoye now to take positive action.

China — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek bitterly denounced Communist demands that special areas be created in China along Soviet lines. He said the government must move to subdue insubordination.

Warriors All.

Whenever Benito Mussolini has seen paunches appearing on his lieutenants he has ordered public exhibitions. The Fascist leaders have swan-dived over fences of bayonets and through hoops of fire.

This was to show the people that their leaders weren't growing soft. Another Duce-encouraged doctrine has been that the Italians are a "warrior people" whose leaders crave front-line action.

With each new reverse at the front, a cabinet minister has gone to the front. By last week-end, eight had gone, including Count Ciano, Il Duce's son-in-law. With the collapse of Italian Somaliland it was announced that one of the regime's most colorful figures, Count Dino Grandi, minister of justice and former ambassador to London, was leaving for war service.

Mussolini himself was reported by Italian prisoners to have visited the Albanian front recently to direct the fighting.

SHAKESPEARE'S POEMS, TOPIC AT ASHLAND COLLEGE MEETING

ASHLAND—"The era of Shakespeare was the time of magic song," stated Mrs. H. E. Andrews, professor of English at Ashland college, as she introduced a program of Shakespeare poetry which had been set to music.

Mrs. Andrews said that this poetry was an outpouring of the spirit of music typical of the people of England in that day. She said that these people loved to gather together and sing with a single musical instrument as an accompaniment.

"This is Sylvia," was the first of Shakespear's poems put into song, the professor explained. She noted that the poem was from the play "Two Gentlemen of Verona." In this poem the poet caught the melody of song. Mrs. Andrews said. The song was set to music by Schubert, was then sung by Sara Vanosdall, a student in the music department of the college.

From "Cymbeline," one of the Shakespear's later plays, comes the poem "Hark, Hark, the Lark," which Mrs. Andrews described as one the author revelled in beauty and song. She said that Schubert, who also set this to music, wrote the composition on the back of a menu. Quoting from the words of the character in the play, who speaks of the poem, Mrs. Andrews said it is "a sweet air with admirable sweet words." Mary Vanosdall, a graduate of the college, sang the musical version of the poem.

Miss Vanosdall sang "Come Unto These Yellow Sands," from "The Tempest," which Mrs. Andrews described as a song of harmonic and melodic beauty.

The program was concluded with a duet, "I Know a Bank," the words of which are taken from the play, "Oberon." Mrs. W. M. Garrigus, instructor of voice, was the accompanist.

THEATERS

Frontier Life.

Romance, action, drama and adventure are all part of the film, "Western Union," which opens today at the Ohio. The story opens in the roaring boom town of frontier Omaha where the only law was a blazing six-shooter. Dean Jagger portraying Edward Creighton, the telegraph builder, starts a huge wagon-train rolling out across the prairies. Their job is to build the telegraph over a West infested by renegades and savage Indians.

* * *

Confusing Romance.

"Honeymoon For Three," one of the features opening at the Madison today, stars Ann Sheridan and George Brent in an entertaining comedy. The story tells of one of those long romances of college days that although forgotten pops up at the most inopportune time. Second on the bill is a revival of an old favorite "Here Comes the Navy," featuring James Cagney and Pat O'Brien. Much of the rapid-fire action takes place on units of the U. S. fleet which could not be photographed at the present time.

* * *

Revival of Old Film.

Another film revival is "Rain," a picture taken 14 years ago, and starring Joan Crawford and Walter Huston. This and "Santa Fe Trail" are the feature attractions Sunday and Monday at the Ritz. In the latter story Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland are co-starred. Where the railroad and civilization ended the Santa Fe Trail began, and there, in the era, was lived one of the lusty, lawless episodes in the nation's history.

Gene Autry In Lead.

Ann Miller, the young lady who made such a hit in "The Hit Parade of 1941," is cast as Gene Autry's leading lady in the picture "Melody Ranch" which begins Sunday at the Park. Jimmy Durante also adds his bit to the comedy. Co-attraction is a "chiller-diller," "The Ape," starring Boris Karloff. Once again Karloff depicts a crazed character.

Saint In Trouble.

Co-feature is "That's Right, You're Wrong," starring Kay Kyser and Ginny Simms.

GALION PARENTS TALK OVER CHILD PROBLEMS AT MEETING

GALION — Parents of the Galion Nursery school children took part in a discussion Friday evening at the East School to tell of changes noted in their children since attending school.

The parents told of benefits their children had gained from attendance at the school. The discussion was led by the school supervisor, Mrs. Sara Beegle. Weight gains were also discussed.

Mrs. Elvira Stinehelfer, member of the school staff, gave a talk on praparing green vegetables to make them appealing to the child. Parents joined in a discussion concerning development of taste for different foods.

The group discussed discipline and behavior problems. It was stressed that children are closely supervised in school and that they have the opportunity to make their own choices on the variety of materials with which to work and play.

There are now 25 pupils in the school, but the state has provided that enrollment may be increased to 30 children from lower income families of the city.

The meeting of parents was in charge of the new president, Mrs. Arthur Dawson. Plans were made to hold a spaghetti supper some time in April.

Meetings of the parents are usually held every two weeks when child problems are discussed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Floris Arnold, who assists Mrs. Beegle in supervising the school, and Mrs. Stinehelfer, another staff member.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 16.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonies of several conflicting situations, with adverse conditions offsetting those of promise and encouragement. It's a day for approaching antagonistic and frustrating situations with balance, control and restraint.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which reserve, calm judgment, prudence and thrift may vanquish hazardous conditions menacing pocketbook, stability of fortunes and personal peace of mind. Shun extravagance on all lines.

A child born on this day should be energetic, ambitious, studious and thoughtful, with warmth and generosity, yet it may be carried away by its generous impulses.

For Monday, March 17.

Monday's astrological forecast should be for a particularly lively and thrilling day with matters moving to unexpected climax in all phases of living. While business, employment, etc., may be very progressive and bring tokens of preferment and probably promotion, yet the personal life, in the affections, emotions and romantic adventures may eclipse all other interests.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of sudden and startling developments, particularly in their private affairs, affectional and romantic.

This eclipsing possibly some very promising and progressive ventures of a business or occupational nature. Much dramatic experience and happiness may occur.

A child born on this day should be talented, original, capable as well as have an outstanding personality bespeaking high adventure and romance in its life.

Hobbies Safety Valve Of Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Up to now my marriage has been a success. But since my husband has acquired many messy hobbies, I feel that I can't stand it another minute and I would like your advice as to what course to take.

"One of these hobbies is developing and printing pictures. He orders me out of the kitchen at the most inopportune times, saying that I ought to be glad to rest a while and help him save twenty cents or so. That's all it costs for this developing.

"Then he had an idea that he wanted to keep fish in the bathtub. I don't like the slimy things, and I don't want them in my bathtub. When I suggested he get a tank for them, he argued that he can't afford that. Finally I gave in to him; there was nothing else to do.

"My simple hobby is raising flowers in pots, to which he objects. I think this is an attractive hobby, don't you?

"VERY DISCOURAGED."

When I get a letter like this, I start wondering. Is the lady doing a bit of spoofing, or does she really object to her husband indulging in a few safe and sane hobbies? The only one at which I would draw the line, if it were my problem, would be fish in the bathtub. I'd settle that by going to a second-hand hardware shop and buying an old tub. I've often noticed them outside of remodeled houses with the polite offer that they could be carted away gratis.

The lady doesn't state whether the fish are pets, such as gold, silver, guppies or fantails, or if they're eating fish destined to appear on the family supper table fried to a golden brown and with their personalities somewhat obscured by sprigs of parsley. If such is the case, and she is a lover of fresh fish, why complain?

There is evidence that this lady must have touches of the old-fashioned girl in her composition. In which case, it's too bad she's chased away from the cookstove. According to those specialists who are always putting the behavior of women under a microscope and selling the results of their prying and probing to women's magazines, the modern woman is no longer a domestic animal. She wants scant excuse to kiss the kitchen stove goodbye, thanking goodness for the respite, she jabs on her hat and is off to the movies or a style show.

If the lady belongs to the vanishing type and hates to be separated from the kitchen, used as a developing room, I sympathized. If sh eis not an ardent housekeeper, congratulations are in order.

As to her own hobby, I hope she will assert her right and raise not only flowers in pots but in seed flats, where she can raise many more. I share this hobby with my correspondent and at the moment delphinium seeds are struggling upward in one of my own sunny windows.

There's no use in getting bitter about hobbies of either sex. They are the greatest safety valve of married life. The only sensible thing to do about hobbies is for husbands and wives to go along with them and be thankful that it's a passion for developing photographs, collecting postage stamps, raising flowers on window sills, collecting fishing tackle or that most messy of all hobbies, carpentry at home, rather than "the other woman" or "the tall, handsome man who really seems to understand me."

Treatment For Pretty Arms

By MME. QUI VIVE

If fairy godmothers were wandering round the earth, bestowing blessings, practically every pretty dolly would ask for a nice, fat beauty budget. Especially those girls who fare forth in the early morn to earn wages, have little time for home prettying. About the best they can do is to get the old mop trimmed, shampooed and finger waved, finger nails manicured.

One evening a week given over to home beauty chores will help them to catch up. One must look well to feel all right, and to let oneself go to seed is no help in hanging onto the job.

After the face creaming, give attention to hands and arms. If you wear wool frocks the human fins aren't likely to look attractive when you get into your bare-back evening robe. Arms, of course, never get a peek-in at the beauty feast unless one has time for professional treatments. And a pretty, well-turned arm of satin-smooth surface is a beauty triumph, not to be sneezed at.

In 20 minutes you can turn old arms into new ones. You will need a firm bath brush, a massage cream, a shaker full of almond meal and plenty of elbow grease. That's all.

All right, here we go. Begin with a rousing old soapy scrubbing, concentrate on elbows that are seldom in form. Use warm water and a bland soap — harsh soaps are insulting to self-respecting skins—and a bath brush that does the business. Prolong the scouring until the flesh is warm and pink. Soak the hands for a few minutes to soften the cuticle around the finger nails.

Anoint arms and hands with a heavy massage cream. If you must economize, you can substitute cocoanut oil or toilet lanoline. Whatever medium you employ, spread it on generously. You are giving your arms a party, so don't be stingy.

Make a bracelet of the fingers of one hand and, beginning at the wrist, work upward toward the shoulder, pressing in with the finger tips as you progress.

Straighten the arm and, with flattened palm, do an up and down stroke. Go over the entire surface. Thumb your elbows; the flesh is coarse there, often gray. Stimulate the circulation by folding the hands together tightly bringing them up to the shoulder. Repeat ten times.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

MY HANDS shook, in spite of the flogging I was giving my will power, as I took from Ronald's hands the letter from Marion which had caused such an upheaval in his life.

But has hands were steady, with no sign of the nervous twitching which had been so perceptible from the moment I had first seen him outside his sister's door. And his whole mien was like that of a man who, going to execution, was bearing himself courageously, and was also alert for a possible but little hoped-for reprieve.

"Please sit down, Ronald," I said quietly, for I felt childishly that I could not bear his towering over me while I read the letter. "This will take me some time, for I am going to read it more than once, and study it most carefully."

"Why?" he asked, then gave a little gesture of comprehension.

"Oh! I see," he said. "You want to memorize it. Marion and Carolyn have told me how marvelously trained your memory is."

"I have another reason than that for studying the letter so carefully," I told him, "but I would rather not talk about it now."

"Oh! I'm sorry!" he said mechanically and, sitting down in the chair opposite me, folded his arms across his chest, as if he were holding himself in from explosive action.

His composure spurred my willpower, and when I unfolded the letter, my fingers had ceased to tremble. But I was conscious that he was watching me closely, and with the knowledge that while I could control my facial muscles, my eyes were not so trustworthy. I held the letter down so that, while I read it, my lids and lashes would conceal any surprise or other emotion I might feel.

"Dear Ronald," the letter began, and my brain gave its first stirring of interest, for I was so sure that Marion's usual letters to the boy who adored her were headed by much warmer salutations. Then, before I read on, I put a query to Ronald.

"Does Marion generally type her letters to you?"

"Yes, we both use typewriters," he said. "We agreed to that when she was at Whitney Hall. You see," flush rose to his cheeks, "they were pretty long, so we used very thin paper, and it's horribly slow to write on that kind of paper with a pen. You're so apt to blot it. But she must have had an unfamiliar typewriter, because there are several words misspelled, and you know that isn't like Marion. She's a marvelous speller."

Again I felt that stirring of interest, but I only replied quietly, "Yes, I know," and went back to the letter.

"You'll hate me forever, when you read this," the first sentence said, and I could imagine the horrified attention Ronald must have given these words.

"But pleese believe me," the next sentence ran, "I can't help it. This thing is to strong for me."

Again my mental alarm clock sounded. Three misspelled words in one short paragraph made a high score for an inexperienced typist, and Marion, I knew, had taken that part of the business course at Whitney Hall in her post graduate year while she was waiting to be old enough to enter college at Weirhampton.

Why the Misspelled Words?

"I might as well get it over with," the letter ran on. "I don't love you any more, not the way we thought. It all went when I met this other man. I can't tell you why, Ronald, I can't explain it, but it was all over with me in a minute, and it was the same with him. I tried, honestly, I did, but you wouldn't want me to make beleive, wood you, Ron?"

This was a little too much for credence. I told myself, that the continued misspelling of "believe" and "would" was due to the use of an unfamiliar typewriter. But if that were not the reason, then why, why, why?

Fugitive on a Dude Ranch + +

CHAPTER XXXIV

When upon every one in the tension-filled room saw that the investigator held only a button!

John William Smith charged over to Nancy, enfolding her in a fearless hug. "Nan, I ain't hep to the whole of this crazy mix-up but did you nail that damn crook's lule to the fence? Did she, Dor?"

Over the girl's sunny head, Smith looked at the still dumbfounded Cinders Malley Sturgis, and snapped the question, "Young man, have you been taking good care of my niece?"

"Indeed he has, Uncle Dan," Nancy said with a [illegible] "and I'm the most [illegible] I'd like to continue it."

Across the room Slim Cummings [illegible] to Roberta Rowland. "She's [illegible] with [illegible] to help the wrench [illegible]"

"So I was, Slim. Let's go W[illegible]" Roberta replied [illegible] a fine thing for [illegible]

"We sure are, Miss Mar—I mean Roberta. I'm so [illegible] I'm so [illegible] I could shout and yell [illegible]"

"And I'd shout too, except I'm all wore up with Tony," said Roberta, [illegible] Holliday Hanks [illegible] Sheriff Crowder was [illegible] a sallon and greatly [illegible] over, Smoothie Lee [illegible] J Barclay.

* * *

Hall'day Hank and Ike Skittles were also there, both oldtimers, chuckling and offering the sheriff advice and assistance.

Old Sol, with his arm around Ruth Perriwell's shoulders, appeared in the yard, and Mrs. Perriwell said, "Ike, we're still running a dude ranch. We still have guests and cowboys to feed."

"Yeh, I'll get breakfast," Ike replied. "Though, blister my feelers, if it won't seem powerful lone after what's 'us' happened. . . . Hey! Where's Tony a-goin'?"

Anthony Thomas Perriwell, in the ranch flivver with its engine [illegible] swept past Halfaday Hanks' store. As the vehicle rattled over the bridge Tony turned [illegible] "Don't try to stop me. I'll [illegible] I want to be back!"

"Hey? Huh?" gasped Sol. "Well, by Iggs, Ma, I dunno what you [illegible] but I bet Tony's tellin' the [illegible]"

A moment Kirk Maxwell rushed from the cookhouse whooping, "A [illegible] The All-Seeing Eye! [illegible] I have Nancy Eleanor [illegible] This time my story'll be the truth!" He sped [illegible]

Old Sol and Mrs. Perriwell went to the lodge, where the [illegible] Sol, I'm still a dude, but I do remember a [illegible] lodge come for Donald Sturgis several days ago. I was [illegible] that many so I [illegible] the rack. Expecting some [illegible] might show up to claim it. . . . Well, I guess I [illegible] Cinders [illegible]

"Yeh forgot it, Ma. You still in [illegible] That gal [illegible] in? By dogs, I'm plumb bumfoozled. Plumb!"

From the cookhouse, John William Smith and Alfred E. Lovejoy walked to Halfaday Hank's car. J. W. saying, "You're sure a go-getter, Lovejoy. Can't tell you how tickled I am you trailed me out here. . . . Say, wasn't that a lullycoola of a mix-up on them two packages Nan just explained? To think of Smoothie slippin' the swag he was out to steal to her, thinkin 'twas his pal, and Smoothie's pal gettin' that Maxwell stuff slipped to him in the dark by Don Sturgis!

"Now that I'm in the old West again, I figger to stay a spell, Lovejoy, unless you insist I go back with you. But you can take that plunder to Mrs. Smythe. As for Nancy's share and what goes to her sisters—well, I've got the legal right to take charge of that now. Perhaps you heard, Lovejoy, the court decided the case in my favor? I'm now the guardian of my three nieces! Aim to wire Elizabeth and Jane to come out here for a vacation right off."

"Congratulations," said Lovejoy heartily.

"Thanks. I reckon I'd better wire Pauline everything's hunky and for her to send Hudson Alexander about his business. If only she'll do that!"

"I'm sure she will," agreed Lovejoy laughing. "For it so happens, Smith, that a few minutes before I flew west, I had a phone call to the effect that Hudson Alexander's wife had showed up and was trying to get him out of jail. She'll hardly succeed for we dug up that slicker's past record!"

* * *

John William clapped the investigator on the shoulder, and from his coat pocket hauled forth a handful of cigars. "By jingo, that settles somethin' else, Lovejoy! Uh-huh. It sure does. . . . Hank, I want to send a couple of telegrams by you. . . . Have some cigars, boys, all o' you. Best I can do in the way of settin' 'em up right now. . . . Maybe I'd better make dead sure of somethin' afore I write out those telegrams."

John William tiptoed back through the dining room, to reappear again in a moment. "Yep. It's all hunky-dory. . . . Mayheso, boys. I'll start those kids up in business, buy 'em a ranch. But they'll have to make a go of it and pay for it, too."

"You might do the same thing for them young 'uns riding up the valley" suggested Ike Skittles, his eyes following Roberta Rowland and Slim Cummings.

"Good idea! Am I glad I flew out here!"

"Hey, you're a mighty good ol' injun!" epaculated Halfaday Hank wagging his head. "And I think you was locoed!"

Suddenly the morning sun burst into full view, flooding the T Slash with glorious light. Forth from the bunkhouse trooped the cowboys, all gazing in wonder towards the stage car and two saddled horses and the people congregated there, little realizing the drama they had missed. Behind the cookshack a meadow lark began to sing. In the old kitchen Nancy Eleanor Smith looked up to meet the fond gaze of Cinders Malley Sturgis' smoke-gray eyes and neither man nor girl felt further need of words.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

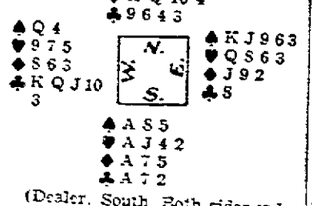
"The Authority on Authorities"

FOOL THE DECLARER

YOU CAN figure out sometimes that a false-card by you could not possibly influence your partner's play, but might befuddle the declarer into misreading the situation. That is the time to use your smartness especially if by doing so you can make the declarer try a finesse which is doomed to lose, or strive for the break of a suit which is not evenly divided.



(Dealer, South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT

West led his club K and followed with the 10, which South took with the A. Trying to keep West out of the lead, South passed the heart 10, won with the Q by East, who had discarded the spade 6 on the second club and now returned the spade 3.

Some real figuring had been done by West. Knowing that South bids No Trumps originally only with a 4-3-3-3 distribution, he saw the diamond suit would break evenly for four tricks. These, plus three marked heart tricks and two black aces, would give South nine tricks. If only West could make South finesse diamonds. He saw how, by playing the spade Q on South's A.

West could tell South would read his hand thus five clubs because East discarded on the second one, three hearts because he would soon have to follow suit on two more heart tricks, so that if he appeared to have only one spade, South would place him for four diamonds and so would finesse the suit.

That is what South did. After winning the spade fourth trick, he took the heart K, diamond K, diamond A, heart A, heart J with West trashing a club, and then finessed the diamond 10 East won with the J and cashed three spades, seting the contract. If West had not false-carded on that spade, South would have played the diamond Q on the tenth trick, dropping the J and the 10 then would have made his ninth trick.

* * *

Your Week-End Lesson.

If West had raised his partner's spade suit during the auction and South finally gets into a contract of 5-Clubs. North having bid hearts, too, what card should West lead from the following hand, and why?

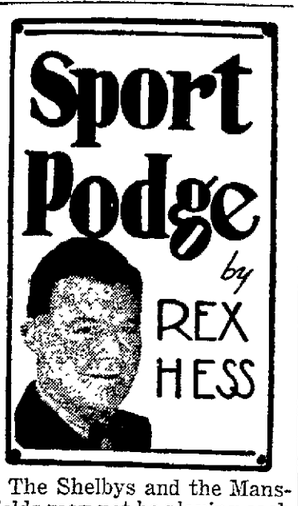
Fremont Edges Mansfield In Sudden Death Overtime

Butler Bulldogs Lose In Closing Minutes

Sport Podge by REX HESS



The Shelbys and the Mansfields may not be playing each other at bucketball come next wintry weather.

In fact, unless steps are taken and one thing and another, the Tyger-Whippet hoop rivalry for 1941-42 already is in the ash-can.

Mansfield high school athletic officials have received a letter from Shelby stating that no room can be found on the Whippet schedule for next season.

It's explained that the Shelby athletic board frowns on mid-week games, and that there are no vacancies for Mansfield on the Whippet week-end cage card.

* * *

Coach Bill Query tells me Shelby isn't fooling about that kibosh on mid-week tilts.

"We've been trying for several years to cut down on Tuesday night games," says Query, "and in the season just closing, Mansfield and Crestline were the only schools we played during the week. Our N. C. O. league games were all on Friday and Saturday nights.

"So, we're sorry, but that's the way it is."

What? No Mansfield-Shelby game? How are we going to decide that Richland county class A championship? By the Dickinson system? Go on. That guy has tossed a lot of ringers, but he never shot a bucket in his life.

Bill Boliantz, the old Mansfield Tyger, ranked second in shooting accuracy on the Kent State university quintet this winter.

Led only by Ted Tucker, who inserted 39 out of 121 heaves at the hoop for .322, Boliantz chunked in 33 fielders on 102 tosses at the beskirted ring for .304.

Incidentally, Ed Chatlain, another old Tyger, who made both the All-Ohio and All-Ohio conference honorable mention selections of the Associated Press, placed at center on the second team of Kent's all-opponent choice.

The Wittenberger was edged for first team honors by Baughman of Mt. Union.

Bissman Birdie Brand bowlers may meet Everett Scott's Fort Wayne quintet for the third time this season. A new Van Wert alley, attempting to popularize the alley sport, is dickering for an exhibition match between the two teams.

With no reflections on their other opponents, the Bissmans would rather meet the Everett Scotts than any other team on their special match schedule.

The old New York Yankee spreads cheer, and I'm not alluding to the brand of beer his team advertises.

* * *

Oh, cheery beery be—nope, no poetry today. The Poetry Society of America is frowning my way. But they can't kick me out if they don't let me in, I always say.

Two Players Share Honor

SHELBY—Two senior students, William Daugherty and Glenn Fought, were elected as honorary co-captains of the 1940-41 cage team at Shelby high school.

Both students are high on the scholastic honor roll, and were Shelby's highest point scorers during the season.

* * *

Daugherty is son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Daugherty, 170 West Main street. He played a guard position on the varsity cage five and was quarterback of Shelby's co-championship football team last fall.

* * *

Fought, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Fought, 26 High School avenue, played a forward position.

CALL FOR TRACK

SHELBY—First call for track candidates will be made Monday at Shelby high school, Coach William Query announced. Indoor sessions will be held until the weather is more favorable, Query said.

Drop Close Decision To Attica

Failure to Make Good On Free Shots Costly.

BUTLER'S Bulldogs were edged by Attica in the closing minutes of the semi-final game of the district high school basketball tournament at Bascom last night 44-40.

Attica got the jump on Coach Merrill Hall's boys, but Butler rallied to reduce the edge to four points at the quarter, 16-12. Attica increased its lead to 30-22 at the half, but Butler again came back and trailed 32-35 as the third period closed.

* * *

With three minutes left to play, Butler forged ahead 38-36, but Attica again took the lead, and stalled effectively to the end, taking advantage of Butler's efforts to gain possession of the ball to chalk up an extra marker.

* * *

Butler just wasn't hitting, Coach Hall said today. Jack Wilson led the Bulldog attack with seven buckets, but even so was off in his shooting, and in the last minute saw a sucker shot roll off the hoop.

The Bulldogs also missed from the foul line. Dave Grubb made his first two free shots, then missed five in a row, while his mates failed to add even one free point.

In the other semi-final game, Mount Cory defeated Tiffin Calvert 27-19, and Butler and Calvert will meet tonight in a consolation tilt as a preliminary to the championship game.

Junior Race Puzzles Mack

Connie Says He Doesn't Know League Winner.

ANAHEIM, Cal. — (U.P.) — Connie Mack announced today that he couldn't pick the winner of the 1941 American league pennant race, and, moreover, couldn't even tell which club would finish last.

In his book—and it's a thick one—the contest is just that close.

* * *

A year ago the Philadelphia patriarch scored a clean beat on the baseball world. He said his Athletics would whip the New York Yankees in the opening game of the season, and then the Yanks would go on to finish no better than third. He was only too right on both counts, but he says that 1941 is a new year and a brand new story.

* * *

"I knew last spring that the Yanks were ready to go down," he said. "Well, I happen to know how teams react after they've been winning too long. It was just in the cards that they would have to weaken somewhere because they had lost the urge. That was easy, but I can't say that this season is anything so clear."

Mack doesn't believe that any team can be completely counted out of the scramble that will begin the middle of next month, and his reason is disarmingly simple. It centers in the same Yankees. For four years the Bronx boys were too good for teams in the league. Now they are down to the common level—and everyone has a chance.

MICHIGAN STATE COACHES CALLED

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(INS)—The army today claimed two Michigan State college assistant football coaches, Al Kircher and On Rossi.

Kircher will report at Fort Knox, Ky., to serve as a first lieutenant in a mechanized unit. Rossi has enlisted as a cadet in the army flying corps.

Vandy Cheers Redleg Camp

Double-No-Hit Johnny Looks Good on Hill.

ORLANDO, Fla. — (U.P.) — Despite a 5 to 0 whitewash at the hands of the New York Yankees, there was jubilation among the Cincinnati Reds today over the fine form shown by Johnny (double no hit) Vander Meer in spring training.

Vandy, who was sent to the minors last year in an attempt to regain his 1938 effectiveness, held the Yankees to one hit in four innings yesterday although issuing five passes.

* * *

Even though he walked five men Vander Meer was not especially wild. Many of his pitches just missing the corner of the plate.

* * *

However, it wasn't so much the statistics that impressed Skipper Bill McKechnie but the new confidence and coolness with which Johnny faced difficult situations.

In the first inning, for example, Vandy walked two men with only one man out and then struck out hard-hitting Charley Keller and got Joe Gordon on a foul out. He retired the Yanks in order in the second round, struck out two and yielded a hit and a walk in the third and added two more strikeout victims for a towl of six in his fourth and last inning.

* * *

The Reds were impotent themselves at bat during the entire game. They touched three rookie hurlers for only two hits in suffering their second loss of the graepfruit belt season. Bill Baker and Frank McCormick got the only safeties—both singles.

* * *

The Redlegs tangle with the Washington Senators here today. Paul Derringer, Jim Turner and Elmer Riddle are to pitch for the champions.

NAMED FOR FELLER

LAKELAND, Fla. —(AP)— Hal Manders, rookie pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, who is a cousin and great admirer of Bob Feller, is naming his baby son for the Cleveland star. Manders learned yesterday that his wife had given birth to a seven-pound boy at the home of her parents in Evansville, Ind.

Little Giants Rally to Take Rough Battle

Loss of McGinty in Third Period Spells Disaster for Tygers

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH'S battling Tygers saw their hopes of district cage championship expire last night in sudden death.

Leading from seven to nine points through most of the game, the Tygers were overtaken by Fremont's Little Giants as one after another of the Mansfield regulars was fouled out of the semi-final game at the Sandusky tournament.

* * *

Tied 29-29 at the end of the regulation playing time, neither team was able to score in the first overtime period. Then came the sudden death second overtime session, and a bat-in shot under the hoop by Carl Hufford, Fremont guard, for a 31-29 Little Giant victory.

* * *

It was a glorious victory for Fremont, and the Tygers were no less glorious in defeat. Both teams battled from the opening whistle and a more frantic, frenzied exhibition of bucketball I haven't seen in many years.

It wasn't good basketball by technical standards. It was fighting basketball from the opening minutes of play, and players sprawled on the floor in piles as they came together in hard contact.

The Tygers gave every ounce of energy and fight left in their tired bodies as they came down the stretch and into the nerve-tingling overtime stanzas, and the big crowd of Mansfield fans who followed the team to Sandusky was closer to the team in that heart-breaking finale than it had been all season. Coach Vern Hoffman's hoopsters finally had won the all-out support of their hometown fans.

* * *

Mansfield gained a 9-6 lead in the first quarter, but Fremont was first to score on a free shot by Snooks Jenkins, colored forward. Joe Romano plunked a shot from the corner and Jack Shiplet cashed a pair of free tosses. Jack Carroll scored under the hoop for Fremont. Bruce McGinty got a free point and Romano again scored from the side. Bob Hall dunked a shot from the corner for the Giants. McGinty got an under-basket shot, and Bowlus a free point.

* * *

Starting the second period Dick Burkholder found the hoop on a pair of free tosses, and Romano inserted a long shot from the side to make 13-6. Carroll ringed a one-hander from the circle. Burkholder made the first of a pair of free shots, and when he missed the second, Windy Winbigler followed it in for two points, boosting the score to 16-8. Hall and Jenkins each got a free point, reducing the margin to 16-10 at the half.

Burkholder increased the lead with a pair of free shots. Carroll caged an over-head shot from the side. Winbigler also scored from the side, and Jenkins flipped a one-hander from the side. Winbigler counted on a short shot to make it 22-14. McGinty got a free point. Carroll hooped a one-hander from the circle and Hall scored under the ring. Shiplet sank a long shot.

* * *

McGinty was fouled out of the ball game, and there went Mansfield's victory as the Tygers lost the rebounds for the remainder of the tilt. Winbigler sank a one-hand shot from the circle, giving Mansfield a 27-18 lead at the third quarter.

* * *

Hall sank a one-hander from the corner. Shiplet got a free point. Frantz scored from the circle. Jenkins hooped from the side and Carroll got a follow shot. Handicapped by an over-loaded personal foul marking, the Tygers were forced to let the Fremonts run freely. Krupp replaced Dietzel who had gone in for McGinty. Bowlus got a free point and Carroll dribbled in for a bucket that put Fremont ahead 29-28. Krupp and Bowlus were ordered from the floor for fighting, and on the double foul Hufford missed his free shot, but Joe Altamonte, amid a storm of boos from the Fremont section, calmly sank the tying point that sent the game into overtime.

Rizzuto Takes Army Examination

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. —(INS)—Phil Rizzuto, New York Yankee rookie shortstop, appeared before the local draft board here and today expected to submit to physical examinations early next week.

Draft officials said that the status of the young shortstop, who came to the Yankees from their Kansas City farm club, probably would be known within two weeks, the information having to be transferred to his home selective service board in Brooklyn.

Loudonville's Red Birds Reach Finals

Defending Champs Defeated

Three State Finalists Of 1940 Eliminated.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.)—Two more class A district representatives—Bryan and Lakewood—qualified today for the state high school basketball tournament and three more of last year's class A finalists fell by the wayside in district playoffs.

* * *

Lakewood defeated Ashtabula, 39 to 27, in the northeastern tourney at Euclid Shore last night to enter the state classic for the third time. Lakewood played in the 1924 and 1925 tourneys at Columbus, finishing as runner-up to Springfield in 1925.

* * *

Bryan comes to the state meet for the second time by virtue of its 40 to 36 victory over Defiance, defending district titleholder. Bryan made its first trip to Columbus two years ago.

Toledo Waite and Bellefontaine joined Defiance in defeat last night to raise to 12 the number of last year's 16 class A teams at Columbus to be eliminated in district playoffs.

Waite lost to Toledo Libbey, 21 to 18, last night and Bellefontaine dropped a 34 to 25 decision to Xenia.

Each of the six defending class B champions in action last night came through with triumphs, leaving 10 of last year's state finalists still in the race for return trips to Columbus.

* * *

The field of 16 class A and 16 class B outfits who will battle for the state crowns next week will be completed in district finals around the state tonight.

* * *

Marietta from the southeastern district was the only class A district winner of last year to triumph last night. The Tigers trimmed New Boston, 49 to 36, to enter the semi-finals at Athens this afternoon.

Among the class B defenders, Midvale nosed out Philo, 44 to 41, and Smithfield defeated Lewisville, 36 to 28, in the eastern district; Bluffton turned back Delphos Jefferson, 55 to 46, in the northwestern; Glenford swamped Ames-Bern, 53 to 19, and Kitts Hill whipped Lynchburg, 41 to 35, in the southeastern, and Hanover defeated Madeira, 37 to 31, in the southwestern.

Fremont Ross and Mansfield staged the tightest duel of the entire tournament schedule when Ross edged Mansfield, 31 to 29, after two overtime periods in the class A meet at Sandusky.

* * *

Carl Hufford sank a field goal after 25 seconds of the "sudden death" second overtime to give his team the game.

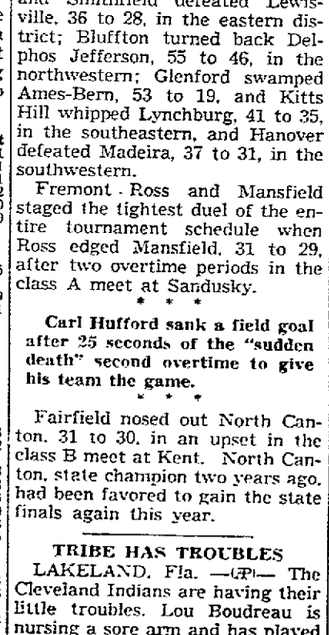
* * *

Fairfield nosed out North Canton, 31 to 30, in an upset in the class B meet at Kent. North Canton, state champion two years ago, had been favored to gain the state finals again this year.

TRIBE HAS TROUBLES

LAKELAND, Fla. —(AP)— The Cleveland Indians are having their little troubles. Lou Boudreau is nursing a sore arm and has played in only three innings of each of the last two exhibitions. Ken Keltner is suffering from sinus trouble, his annual spring ailment, and had to be replaced by Russ Peters yesterday.

Champ's Ready



LOIS GOELLER

Lois Goeller, 13, of Mineloa, N. Y., holder of the U. S. junior roller figure skating championship, is ready to defend her title in the 1941 national championship to be held in Cleveland April 23-26.

WINDSOR REFEREES OLD STARS' MATCH

NASSAU, Bahamas, — (INS) — Probably they're playing ten years too late, but, anyway, golfdom's old Big Four—Bobby Jones, Tommy Armour, Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen—squared off on the links today with the Duke of Windsor as their referee.

The match is being staged as a Red Cross benefit and will be a 36-hole, four-ball competition, the final 18 holes being carded for tomorrow.

Roy's Weight Worries Peck

Weatherly's Waist Line Bulges In Uniform.

LAKELAND, Fla. —(U.P.)— An oversized waistline bothered Manager Roger Peckinpaugh of the Cleveland Indians more than the Detroit Tigers today.

It's not his own waistline he's worried about. It belongs to holdout Roy Weatherly. The chunky outfielder, who refuses to sign his contract unless it covers the next two years, arrived at the Fort Myers training camp and donned a uniform yesterday for the first time.

* * *

Weatherly had announced that he weighed only 175. Onlookers, however, gasped when he appeared in a uniform that bulged at the middle. Weatherly avoided the scales as carefully as he avoided a fountain pen in his negotiations with the Cleveland front office.

* * *

While the Indians moved to Lakeland for a game today with the American league champions, Detroit, Weatherly remained at Fort Myers to work off some excess poundage and also to dicker further with Vice-President C. C. Slapnicka on his contract terms.

"He still wants a two-year contract," Slapnicka said. "And we do not intend to give it to him. I intend to discuss the situation with Mr. Bradley."

President Alva Bradley said "we will not consider a two-year contract."

Dewey Atkins is listed among the starters for today's exhibition. Jim Bagby and Al Smith also will do a turn each.

Matty Given Full Support

DALLAS, Tex. —(INS)— Contract troubles which plague so many coaches apparently are the least of Coach Matty Bell's worries at Southern Methodist university. University officials announced today Bell has been granted a new contract running through 1947.

* * *

The Mustang mentor became head football coach at Southern Methodist in 1935, and since his teams have won 42 games against 18 loses and 4 ties.

The explanation for Bell's new five-year contract was that it will "prevent him from entertaining coaching offers from other schools."

Kerekes Kagers Klick

Tight Defense Again Brings Home Victory.

Loudonville High's Red Birds moved into the double-finals of the Kent district Class B hoop tournament last night with a 23-16 victory over Fairport Harbor, and will meet Canton St. John's tonight at 8:30 for the right to enter the state meet.

Bainbridge and Fairfield tangle in the other final game.

* * *

After a slow start, Coach John Kerekes' cagers led through the last three periods, again displaying a brilliant defensive game to clamp down on the lake shore squad.

* * *

Loudonville clinched the game from the foul line, ringing seven out of 10 shots, and outscored Fairport Harbor by one bucket from the floor.

As usual the Red Bird scoring was well distributed.

Akron experts have installed Canton St. John's as the tournament favorite because of the Canton team's showing against Class A teams during the season, apparently taking Loudonville's victory over Canton Timken as one of those "home-floor" things.

LOMBARDI LIMPS

ORLANDO, Fla. —(AP)— Ernie Lombardi's signature didn't end the Cincinnati Reds' backstopping problems. The big catcher still is limping from the ankle he injured late last season and has been ordered to give it a rest and Dick West, the rookie touted as a possible successor to the regular job, has shown an alarming weakness on high, twisting fouls. He dropped four of them in five exhibition games and failed to reach three others that he was expected to catch.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

The Archer Fish of Malaysia shoots its insect prey with pellets of water. The deep groove down the roof of its mouth becomes, when the tongue is placed along it, a natural blowpipe, and the fish can expel water in single drops or in a continuous jet.

When danger threatens, certain lizards are able to operate special muscles and ligaments which perform a bloodless amputation and leave their tails flipping about on the ground. The severed tail of a lizard will squirm and wiggle for about an hour, and while the lizard's pursuer is investigating it, the owner escapes and shortly grows a new tail.

* * *

If you've never tried fly fishing, there's a world of sport in store for you this season, in this increasingly popular method of angling. The lighter tackle provides greater thrills, even from small pan fish, and Yuncker's will gladly help you to assemble an outfit, complete and dependable, at a surprisingly small cost.

Fishing possibilities in Glacier National Park scarcely have been scratched. In one pool on Belly River, a fisherman saw rainbows, Dolly Vardens, cutthroats, eastern brooks and ginglings. Some of the trout would go over 8 pounds.

Prices Generally Improve In Trading; War News Viewed As on Bullish Side.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Steels and specialties took another turn on the rising side of today's stock market and prices generally displayed improved tendencies.

Prominent on the upward shift were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, U. S. Rubber, Western Union, Anaconda, Revere Copper, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Du Pont.

Commodities were steady.

War news was considered a bit more bullish than otherwise although no great speculative stimulus was provided by overseas dispatches. Corporate earnings, both actual and prospective, were thought by brokers to have been the principal market prop and to have offset to some extent continued apprehension over tanes and labor difficulties.

ROOSEVELT TO OUTLINE PLANS ON AID TONIGHT

Speaks to Nation as Guest of Newsmen; Expected to Deny He'll Weaken U. S. Fleet.

complete hearings and start drafting the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend appropriation bill. Both Democratic and Republican leaders said it would be taken up by the house Tuesday and probably disposed of Wednesday.

Although no real opposition has developed, some senators still talked of the possibility of moves to make part of the fund available as cash and the rest in contract authority. Mr. Roosevelt asked all cash.

In administration quarters, however, arrangements were reported under way to spend the whole huge sum in the next 16 months to obtain maximum speed in delivering weapons to Great Britain, Greece and other nations to be aided.

Policy Unchanged, Says Turk Paper

ISTANBUL—(AP)—Turkey's foreign policy remains unchanged since Germany's occupation of Bulgaria, the newspaper Ikdam insisted today.

"After the occupation of Bulgaria, the Eden and Dill visit and the fuehrer's special note to our president Turkey's position seems to interest everyone," Ikdam said "Our position remains the same"

(Turkey is a non-belligerent ally of Britain, bound by mutual assistance ties to oppose any act of "agression" leading to war in the eastern Mediterranean.

(Those ties were said officially to have been tightened as a result of recent conferences between Turkish leaders and British foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and General Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial general staff.)

"The Eden and Dill visit showed Turkey's relations remained the same—that we will always be loyal to our allies," Ikdam continued. "As for Hitler's special communication, this should not be considered more than a sign of politeness."

No official statement has been made yet, but observers believed it probable that President Ismet Inonu's reply had been sent to the Turkish ambassador at Berlin for delivery.

Premier Refik Saydam is expected to address the national assembly March 19 and he may discuss foreign affairs.

As a new indication of the country's defense measures, the newspeper Vakit said 200 parachutists would make a test landing tomorrow at an undisclosed point beside the strategic Bosporus, the Black sea end of the passage to and from the Mediterranean which includes the Dardanelles.

HEARING OFF

Delayed Because Victim of Attack Can't Appear.

Hearing of assault and battery charges against James Urie, 20, Shiloh R. D. 1, scheduled for yesterday in common pleas court, was postponed until next week after it was learned that Oliver S. Stoner, victim of the alleged attack, was unable to appear.

Urie is accused of striking Stoner in the head with an automobile jack handle when Stoner went to help the youth following an automobile accident. Stoner, it was learned today, suffered a concussion and was unable to leave his home near Rome.

Urie was taken into custody several hours after the car he was driving crashed into a culvert near Stoner's farm home. The youth allegedly struck Stoner after the older man extinguished a blaze in the automobile seat cushions.

STRIKE PARLEY COMES TO HALT

Bus Drivers and Operators In New York Fail to Find Mediation Grounds.

NEW YORK—New York's bus strike, which has paralyzed the city's surface transportation, went into its sixth day today with no peace in sight following breaking off of negotiations between the two companies involved and the CIO Transport Workers union.

Chairman Arthur S. Meyer of the state mediation board withdrew from the negotiations with the statement that further mediation attempts were hopeless in the dispute, which has tied up 1,100 busses of the Fifth Avenue Coach company and the New York Omnibus corporation. He said he was returning to Florida to resume his vacation interrupted by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's appeal for him to attempt to reconcile the demands of the 3,500 strikers.

Before negotiations were broken off, the union decreased its demands from the companies from an additional $3,250,000 to $1,000,000 annually. Meyer said, however, that the union steadfastly refused to submit the controversy to arbitration.

Mayor LaGuardia, informed of the breakdown of negotiations, issued a statement urging the strikers to return to work and accept arbitration. The statement criticized the TWU for having again refused to submit its case to arbitration.

'STOPPED' BY COURT

BUCYRUS—Donald Lee Montee of Nevada was fined $25 and costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving across route 30N without stopping.
